TikTok Creators Unite: $50B Bid to Reclaim Free Speech!

Miami, Florida — In a historic $50 billion bid, 170 million TikTok creators aim to take control of the platform, marking the largest creator-led acquisition ever.

With the assistance of tax professionals, creators can reclaim ownership by making tax-deductible donations from their monetization earnings or applying tax credits from cryptocurrency profits.

And yes, you read that correctly: 170 million U.S. creators are using their tax dollars to buy the platform before America's 883 billionaires.

TikTok and YouTube creators alone generate over $20 billion in annual tax revenue, fueling a $480 billion creator economy projected by 2027. The question isn't whether they can afford it—it's whether creators will sit back and let billionaires own their Free Speech.

Free speech belongs to creators, not billionaires," said Nandy Martin, Project Lead. "With the bullish crypto market, we urge the crypto community to donate a portion of their capital gains. Their tax-deductible contributions empower 170 million creators to reclaim their voices!

Here's How It Works:

With every donation, creators earn governance tokens in the "We Own Tik Tok!" DAO—and importantly, they will vote on free speech, content moderation, and monetization:

1. Content creators donate to the "We Own Tik Tok!" DAO.
2. They receive tax credits/deductions plus governance tokens.
3. They influence Free Speech on Tik Tok by votes.

Want a say in TikTok's future? Just bring your creator friends to Kiskeya.io. For each creator you invite, you get votes equal to their followers—totally free! We're giving away a billion votes.

Tax Deductibility of Contributions from Capital Gains on Crypto

Contributions made to the “We Own TikTok!” DAO from capital gains realized on cryptocurrency investments may be eligible for tax deductions under applicable federal and state tax laws. However, the tax deductibility of any contribution depends on the donor's individual tax situation and the specific nature of the contribution.
